Nova Brand Voice & Messaging Guide

Purpose

Nova helps everyday customers enjoy simple, dependable hydration products. Communications should be clear, practical, optimistic, and customer-first.

Tone of voice

Use a calm, confident, friendly, and helpful tone. Prefer plain language and specific benefits. Avoid slang, hype, fear-based pressure, or exaggerated promises.

Preferred terminology

Use the product name “Nova bottle”. Say “designed to help maintain your drink’s temperature” when supported by product specifications. Refer to customers respectfully and explain features clearly.

Claims and substantiation

Do not use “best in the world”, “number one”, “guaranteed”, “100% effective”, “insane”, or other absolute/superlative claims unless Legal has approved the claim and evidence is documented. Never imply medical or health outcomes without approved substantiation.

Call to action

Use helpful, low-pressure CTAs such as “Explore the features”, “Learn more”, and “Find the right fit for your day”.

Review checklist

1. Is the tone calm, confident, and useful? 2. Is the product name correct? 3. Are claims specific and supported? 4. Does the CTA help rather than pressure the customer?
